Operational Qualification Purified Water System Pharmaceutical

Operational Qualification (OQ) of a purified water system in the pharmaceutical industry is a critical step that ensures the system performs consistently within predetermined limits and specifications. The purified water system (PWS) is foundational to pharmaceutical manufacturing, used extensively in formulation, cleaning, and preparation processes. Validating its operational performance through rigorous qualification phases, especially OQ, is essential to maintain product quality, compliance with regulatory standards, and overall process integrity. This article offers an in-depth exploration of the OQ process for purified water systems, including its purpose, key components, validation procedures, challenges, and best practices.

Understanding Purified Water Systems in Pharmaceuticals

Purified water is a high-quality water used in pharmaceutical manufacturing, characterized by low levels of total organic carbon (TOC), microbial content, endotoxins, and inorganic impurities. It is produced through processes like distillation, reverse osmosis, deionization, and ultrafiltration, often integrated into complex water systems. Ensuring the purity and consistent performance of these systems is critical, as contaminated water can compromise product safety.

What is Operational Qualification (OQ)?

Operational Qualification is a documented process that verifies the water system operates according to its intended design and operational parameters. It is performed after Installation Qualification (IQ)
